

The Fact Remains

No amount of misrepresentation by the peddlers of alum baking powders, no juggling with chemicals, or pretended analysis, or cooked-up certificates, or falsehoods of any kind, can change the fact that has been found by the official examinations to be of the highest leavening efficiency, free from alum, and of absolute purity and wholesomeness.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for making finest and most economical food.

Veteran Answers Last Call.

Capt. Jesse K. Freeman, Sr., in his 77th year, died at his home in Central City last Saturday night from a complication of ailments that for some weeks had caused his family much concern. Deceased was captain of Co. H., 11th Ky. Vol. Inf., and was one of the widely known citizens of the county. He was a native of Hancock county, but had lived in this county since the war. For some years he was postmaster at Central City, and had been actively engaged in several enterprises up until a few years ago, when he retired on account of age. He is survived by his wife, one son, Mr. J. K. Freeman, Jr., postmaster of Central City, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles Cramer, of Louisville. Funeral services were conducted at the home at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and a vast number of friends from over the county were present. Interment was in Fairmount cemetery, and the flag he loved so well was planted at the head of the grave.

Now They Are Watchfully Waiting.

There is dire enemy existing between a boy and girl in this town who have heretofore been good friends. He called a few nights ago, and she had on a new pair of slippers. He apparently did not notice them, and she had to tell him, remarking that the shop keeper had only two pairs in stock, of that particular pattern, one of them size 2 and the other 3 1/2, and asking him which size he thought she selected. If he had responded that she selected the larger size it would have been all right, as that was what she was anticipating, but he said: "Oh, you took the smaller ones, of course, as you always get them too small." Now they are not able to see each other as they pass.

Muhlenberg Boys Win Three Prizes.

Muhlenberg county showed up very strong in the annual contest of mine relief crews held at State University Field, Lexington, last Saturday. There were seventeen crews competing, and five events were scheduled. The Graham team won first prize, a silver cup and six silver medals; the Luzerne team landed third prize, a lungmotor, and the Skibo team pulled down fourth prize, six Kodaks. The Skibo team also put on a lungmotor drill for a moving picture concern, and their efforts in that line were complimented highly, also. All these teams are in the employ of the W. G. Duncan Coal Co., and have been under instruction by Dr. C. B. Martin, who shares in the honors. The men all wore white duck suits, with white caps, and made an impressive appearance.

Central City Post Office Robbed.

Central City was visited by professional safeblowers last Saturday night, and the safe in the postoffice was blown and about $300 in money and $200 worth of stamps secured. The work was done so quietly that nothing was known of it until next morning, when postmaster J. K. Freeman opened the office to distribute the mail. There were several people who passed the office and saw lights, but no attention was paid to it, and when the safe was blown the noise was in some manner so muffled that nobody was disturbed, though the building is in the heart of the city. Officers have no clue, they report, and it is doubtful if the perpetrators will be apprehended.

The first-aid teams of Graham, Skibo and Luzerne are highly appreciative of the way the W. G. Duncan Coal Co. have encouraged and helped them. The appropriations by the company have been generous, amply covering all expenses of training and the trip to Lexington, railroad, hotel and incidental bills all being paid, and an almost unlimited supply of material for the work has always been on hand. The company is equally well pleased with the partnership, and very proud of the prize-winning work of all the teams.

Eczema.

Perhaps the most common of all the diseases of the skin is eczema. It is a very difficult and rebellious disease to treat, and it shows an obstinate tendency to relapse. It may run an acute course, and last only a few weeks, or it may become chronic, and last for years, or even a lifetime. It attacks persons of all ages and conditions, and can mimic every other skin disease that is known.

Eczema is generally a constitutional disorder. Although the immediate outbreak can often be traced to some local irritation, such as the use of a soap that is too strong, or the action of a chemical agent, the chronic cases do not affect those who are in good physical condition. The late Dr. Erasmus Wilson, an English authority on skin diseases, believed that eczema was a disease of debility, and he said that the debility could be divided into three types—the "nutritive," the "assimilative," and the "nervous." The assimilative type of eczema is most often found in infants, and the treatment of infantile eczema is chiefly a matter of changing the methods of feeding, and getting the digestion into good order.

Among the causes for chronic eczema in older persons, gout easily ranks first, many persons suffer from gout or rheumatism without having eczema, but when eczema does appear after middle life, the possibility that it has its origin in gout must be always reckoned with. Eczema of the nervous type sometimes follows a sudden shock, or it may be the result of prolonged anxiety or overwork.

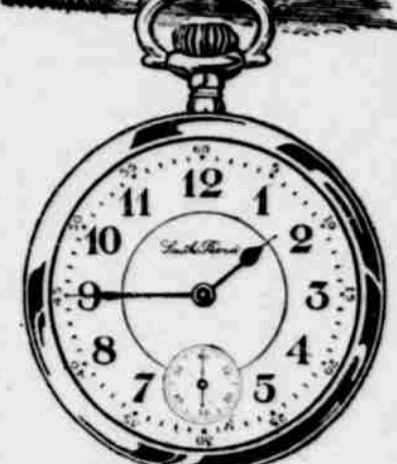

Probably eczema is never brought on by local irritation alone; but it is important to avoid all such irritations, since it is not always easy to tell whether or not a person has a predisposition to the disease. Eczema is almost always worse in winter, for the sudden changes in temperature act as mechanical irritants to the skin. Washing, too, always makes it worse, and sometimes it is necessary to use oil instead of soap and water in cleaning the face and hands. The treatment of the disease is both constitutional and local, and each case must be treated experimentally, for there is no specific for this disorder.

Estil Davis, who was shot by Marshal Dan Langley while resisting arrest at Dunmore last Wednesday, is on the road to recovery at a hospital in Owensboro. Mr. James York is confined to his home with an attack of pneumonia.
